In January 2017, the search for Malaysia Airlines flight MH370 was called off after a three-year, $200 million effort to scan 46,000 square miles of seabed found no sign of the plane. However, with Ocean Infinity stepping forward to restart the search under a “no find, no fee” deal, many in the industry are questioning this high-risk gambit. In this technical event, we explore the previous challenges and milestones encountered by industry and research professionals in the search for MH370.
